DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

1. Claims 26-29 are withdrawn from further consideration pursuant to 37 CFR 1.142(b) as being drawn to a nonelected invention, there being no allowable generic or linking claim. Election was made without traverse in the reply filed on 05/18/05.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

3. Claims 10-13, 15, 16 and 19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Fukutake (JP 11-012813).

In regard to claim 10, Fukutake teaches a garment defining a pair of shorts or pants, the garment having a first section defining an inner hip pocket and a second section defining an outer hip pocket. The second section at least partially covering the inner hip pocket (see figures 1-4 and translation).

In regard to claim 11, Fukutake teaches the inner hip pocket having dimensions of at least 6 cm across by 6 cm deep (figures 1-4).

In regard to claim 12, Fukutake teaches the inner hip pocket having dimensions suitable for holding handcuffs (figures 1-4).

In regard to claim 13, Fukutake teaches the inner hip pocket has a depth such that when the handcuffs are fully inserted therein the handcuffs are completely contained therein, thereby concealing the handcuffs from view (figures 1-4).

In regard to claim 15, Fukutake teaches the outer hip pocket being suitable for receiving a wallet such that when the handcuffs are placed in the inner hip pocket and a wallet is placed in the outer hip pocket the wallet is disposed substantially over the handcuffs. Inherently a wallet would at least partially conceal the handcuffs outline within the inner hip pocket from an observer (figures 1-4).

In regard to claim 16, Fukutake teaches the outer hip pocket is of dimensions such that a periodical type magazine placed in the outer hip pocket will inherently completely conceals the handcuffs (figures 1-4).

In regard to claim 19, Fukutake teaches the inner hip pocket being completely contained within the outer hip pocket (figures 1-4).

4. Claims 10, 20, 21, 24 and 25 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Golde (US 5,884,338).

In regard to claim 10, Golde teaches a garment defining a pair of shorts or pants (14), the garment having a first section defining an inner hip pocket and a second section defining an outer hip pocket (18, 50, 46). The second section at least partially covering the inner hip pocket (figures 2-4).

In regard to claim 20, Golde teaches at least two inner pockets (50, 46) disposed within at least one outer pocket (18). The two inner pockets having dimensions of at least 3 cm long by 2 cm wide by 8 cm deep (50, 46).

In regard to claim 21, Golde teaches at least inner pockets disposed within at least one outer pocket, the two inner pockets having dimensions of at least 3 cm long by 2 cm wide by 8 cm deep (figures 2-4).

In regard to claim 24, Golde teaches a garment defining a pair of shorts or pants (14), the garment having at least one front outer pocket (18) and at least two front inner pockets (46, 50) disposed within the at least one front outer pocket. Each of the front inner pockets having cross sections that are substantially uniform along a vertical axis (figure 4).

In regard to claim 25, Golde teaches each of the front inner pockets having dimensions capable of holding ammunition magazine (figures 1-4).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

5. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 5, 6, 8, 10, 11, 17, 18 and 22 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Goldkind (US 6,769,139).

In regard to claim 5, Goldkind teaches a garment (30) defining a pair of pants or shorts. The garment having at least one outer pocket (47) and at least one inner pocket

Art Unit: 3765

(42) a majority of which is disposed within the outer pocket (figure 3). The inner pocket having a depth of at least 6 cm (figure 1).

In regard to claim 6, Goldkind teaches the outer pocket is a front pocket (figure 1).

In regard to claim 8, Goldkind teaches the outer pocket is a hip pocket (figure 1).

In regard to claim 10, Goldkind teaches a garment defining a pair of shorts or pants (30). The garment having a first section defining an inner hip pocket and a second section defining an outer hip pocket, the second section at least partially covering the inner hip pocket (figures 1, 3 and 4).

In regard to claim 11, Goldkind teaches the inner hip pocket having dimensions of at least 6 cm across by 6 cm deep (figures 1, 3 and 4).

In regard to claim 17, Goldkind teaches the garment being a denim garment (column 1, lines 24-29).

In regard to claim 18, Goldkind teaches the inner hip pocket being completely contained within an outer hip pocket in lengthwise and depth directions and a top edge of the inner hip pocket being disposed above a top edge of the outer hip pocket (figures 3 and 4).

In regard to claim 22, Goldkind teaches a garment defining a pair of shorts or pants (30). The garment having a first section defining a front inner pocket and a second section defining a front outer pocket (figures 3 and 4). The second section at least partially covering the front inner pocket (figures 3 and 4). The front inner pocket having dimensions of at least 3 cm long by 2 cm wide and 8 cm deep (figures 3 and 4).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

6. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

7. Claim 14 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Fukutake.

Fukutake teaches a garment as described above in claims 10 and 12. However, Fukutake fails to teach the inner hip pocket having a position and depth such that when the handcuffs are fully inserted therein the top edge of the handcuffs rises above a top edge of the outer hip pocket, thereby leaving the handcuffs quickly and easily accessible to a wearer.

It would have been obvious to have provided the inner hip pocket having a position and depth such that the handcuffs are completely hidden from view in the pocket or the top edge of the handcuffs above the top edge of the outer hip pocket, because as long as the handcuffs are capable of being received in the inner hip pocket the handcuffs being completely covered in the pocket or not is not essential to the practice of the invention.

8. Claims 7 and 23 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Goldkind (US 6,769,139).

Goldkind teaches a garment with pockets as described above in claims 5, 6 and 22. However, Goldkind fails to teach the front inner pocket having a dimension of 3.5 cm long by 2.5 cm wide by 12 cm deep, to within plus or minus 50/25 percent.

With respect to the limitation that the pocket is 3.5 cm long by 2.5cm deep, to within plus or minus 50/25 percent. It would have been obvious to have the pockets of Goldkind in any dimension as desired as long as the pocket is capable of receiving the ammunition magazine. Pockets are well known in the apparel arts to be included on garments to store items when not needed by the wearer. One having ordinary skill in the art would be able to determine through routine experimentation the ideal dimension for a particular application.

9. Claim 9 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Goldkind in view of Cindel (US 1,466,330).

In regard to claim 9, Goldkind fails to teach a long and narrow pocket on a rear thigh portion of the garment for carrying and substantially concealing a law enforcement baton without interfering with a wearer's ability to run.

Cindel teaches a pant garment with a long and narrow pocket on a rear thigh portion of the garment that is capable of carrying and substantially concealing a law enforcement baton without interfering with a wearer's ability to run (figure 1, identifier 5).

It would have been obvious to have provided the garment with pockets of Goldkind with the long and narrow rear thigh pocket of Cindel, since the garment of Goldkind provided with a long and narrow rear thigh pocket would provide a pant garment that provides even more storage capabilities preventing the loss of an article placed therein.

Allowable Subject Matter

10. Claims 1-4 are allowed.
